FIREMEN'S PARADE DELIGHTS MULTITUDE

Brilliant Array on Streets Attracts Thousands of Visitors---Mus.c and Marching Men Keep the Crowds Excited and Interested---Chronicle of a Day of Blaring Bands, Crowded Streets and General Carnival Spirit.

All good firemen being accustomed to water, externally at least, the weather today did nat deter them from parading although it had a marked effect in decreasing the number of spectators. The parade started, as announced, from the corner of Hasbrouck avenue and the Strand, and marched through the Strand to Broadway and up Broadway to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to Main, to Fair, to North Front, to Wall, to Pearl, to Albany avenue. Despite the bad weather, the early morning rain having been followed by another downpour which began at 11 o'clock, the streets were lined with spectators and the firemen presented a gorgeous spectacle that delighted the populace to such an extent that for the time they forgot the sudden discomfort of the weather.

After holding off for several hours until the streets had become thronged with firemen and merry makers the storm king again waved his hand at about 11 o'clock this morning and in response it seemed as though the clouds turned over and allowed the water that had collected to fall in a deluge that soon swept the street free of the crowds who made wild sprints for cover under the store awnings, in the stores and in the doorways—anywhere that the least shelter offered a protection from the downpour of rain.

At the West Shore station train No. 11 from New York just pulled in before the downpour and discharged several hundred excursionists who had come prepared to enjoy the day. When the rain began to fall they dashed helter skelter for the protection of the depot. In a few minutes enterprising fakers were circulating among the crowd offering to sell umbrellas and for some time they did a good business as practically but few of the throng had come prepared to face the elements.

A delegation from Weiner Hose Company were on hand at the station to welcome the Peerless Hose Company and the Exempts of North Bergen, N. J. but the New Jersey firemen failed to show up.

The terrific rain storm that broke over the city Wednesday night and early this morning, seemed to be general over the southern and northern parts of the county, for the early morning trains on the Wallkill Valley and the Ulster and Delaware railroads brought but a small number of people to this city, the threatening weather frightening those contemplating making the excursion to this city today.

Despite the threatening clouds that lowered over the city there was a large turnout of pleasure seekers on Broadway and the number gradually increased shortly after eight o'clock, when the sun attempted to break through the clouds.

The early train on the Wallkill Valley reaching Kingston in the neighborhood of eight o'clock brought the first installment of the music makers for the parade this afternoon. This was the well known Walden Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps, twenty-one strong and headed by a drum major. The corps were natty in blue uniforms and as they formed in line on Railroad avenue and marched down Broadway to the Central fire station, they created a favorable impression on the early morning throng. There were but a handful, however, of pleasure seekers on the train.

The Ulster and Delaware train that pulled in later had quite a number of excursionists, but not as many as if the weather had been bright and clear.

The next installment of fire laddies and bands came in on the nine o'clock train from Albany. Before the train pulled in to the union station there was a blare of music down Broadway and the Walden drum corps and the Kingston City Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps headed by a delegation of local firemen to the station to meet the incoming firemen. This train brought in the Washington Hook and Ladder Company of Saugerties, Wilson Hose of Catskill, the Saugerties Exempts, and the Colonel's Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps of Saugerties and Company F. Tenth Regiment Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps of Hudson. The visitors were escorted from the station and made a short parade down Broadway.

The arrival of the Catskill firemen reminded the local firemen of the trick that the Catskill delegates to the convention had played on Stephen Shufeldt, the genial hotel keeper on the Strand, where they stopped during the convention. It seems that Steve had a fireman's suit which he stuffed with straw and placed in one of the hotel windows. The Catskill delegation on Tuesday evening helped themselves to Steve's dummy and escorted the dummy uptown where they put him to bed with a delegate from down the river who had retired early. Wednesday morning when the delegate woke up and found another in bed with him he rubbed his eyes and exclaimed, "I be darned I thought I had this bed to myself." He then turned over and took a close look at his bed fellow and snorted with disgust when he found that it was a dummy. It is understood that the Catskill delegation expect to ship back the firemen's suit to Steve who has several sleuths on the trail of the missing "fireman."

Broadway in the vicinity of the West Shore railroad presented a gay and lively sight all through the morning with the martial music of the bands and drum corps and the shrill cries of the fakers who were out in force with a number of new novelties. Traffic was kept moving by the local police, several of whom were stationed near the West Shore crossing.

In spite of the threatening weather many of the women on Broadway were attired in gay colored dresses and with the handsome suits of the visiting firemen that thronged the street presented a gay and lively sight.

Here and there family groups might be seen posing for their pictures which were snapped by the street fakers.

All through the morning the question on every lip was, "Is it going to clear up or is it going to rain again?"

The trolley lines did a rushing business all through the morning and every car carried a large nummer of firemen from one end of the city to the other as well as the throng of pleasure seekers who were in town early in order not to miss a single feature of the big day.

Notes of the Parade.

Phoenix hose company of Poughkeepsie had sixty members in line and came here by automobiles, arriving about 9 o'clock. They were guests of Weiner hose. The parade carriage came up by boat on Wednesday and the duty apparatus arrived later today. Rhinebeck drum corps was at the head of the Poughkeepsie fire fighters.

The fire department of Rockaway, N. J., arrived at Kingston Point about 1 o'clock this morning on the steamer Berkshire. The firemen were met by a reception committee and marched to the Mansion House, which will be headquarters. The members wear the usual service uniform and presented a natty appearance. Some unfavorable comment was expressed that after a long sail the firemen should have been forced to make such a long march to their hotel. They are guests of Rescue hooks.

C. A. Bailey hose company of Rensselaer was one of the first companies to have any sized delegation in town. They arrived Wednesday. Members wear fatigue cap and the old favorite red shirt with dark trousers. They received much applause along the line of march.

The steamer Chrystenah brought up this morning Storm King engine company and Highland engine company of Cornwall and Chapman steamer of Newburgh. They marched to the Holy Cross parish house, where dinner was served.

Among the companies crossing the Rhinebeck ferry were Griffing hose of Red Hook, Hoysradt chemicals of Hudson, accompanied by the Pittsfield exempts and veteran associations. The Philmont hose company also crossed the river from Rhinecliff at 9 o'clock and were taken to their respective places.

Hasbrouck engine company of South Rondout, always a favorite here, came down on the yacht Shultz. Their hand engine had been sent over beforehand. The South Rondout company had one of the best bands in line, the Kingston City, of course.

Nathaniel Houghtaling of Bridgeport, Conn., long a volunteer and an enthusiastic member of the local exempts, was in town for the convention and parade.

Broadway was lined with firemen and their sweethearts on Wednesday night and hundreds of them made their way to the carnival and visited Kingston Point, Lake Katrine and other places of interest.

The usual batch of false alarms were sounded during the night and early morning by the hilarious members of different companies in town for the parade.

William Sayre steamer company of Rhinebeck, making a fine appearance, came across the river this morning and were met by a delegation from Excelsior hose company.

The band concert given by the convention band under the direction of George H. Muller at The Freeman office on Wednesday night drew out a large crowd as the weather conditions were ideal as compared to Tuesday night when the concert at the court house was spoiled by the rain. A fine concert was given Wednesday night and was spoken of in highest terms by the audience. Kingston certainly has reason to be proud of the organization.

Over six hundred were fed at the clambake at Barmann's grove on Wednesday afternoon by Charles H. Parsells, the caterer. Everything was cooked to the king's taste and there was an abundance of all the delicacies of the season.

After the parade this afternoon Weiner hose company had as their guests Phoenix hose company of Poughkeepsie at a bake at the grove. As usual, "Pop" Parsells was in charge and a fine time was had in addition to the good spread provided.

While the bake was on at the grove on Wednesday afternoon Chief of Police Wood discovered a wheel of fortune which was evidently being run by some enterprising individual to milk the firemen. The chief was unable to find the owner of the wheel but he seized it nevertheless and took it to the city hall.

Booth hose company of Poughkeepsie, fifty strong, was well represented in the parade. The company was quartered at Hotel Eichler and were guests of Wiltwycks. Cataract drum corps headed them. The three white horses with the splendid apparatus made a fine showing and called forth much applause.

Superintendent George F. Shrady, of the Aqueduct Police, a son of the late Dr. Shrady of Flatbush, and now in charge of the board of water supply police, arrived in town on Wednesday afternoon with about a score of his men who are quartered at the Kingston Hotel. Most of the men are from the barracks at Brown's Station. The men have their own mounts and made a fine appearance both as to equipment and horsemanship.

The police department today was composed of fifty-four men, including the regular force. The specials were selected with an eye to giving the public the best of service and many compliments were showered on the police for the careful regulation of traffic at intersecting streets. The police had a difficult job at the Rhinebeck ferry, where there were many automobiles going to and fro and at other points on the trolley lines where passengers alighting were threatened by approaching autoists.

J. N. Ring Company, No. 1, of Rensselaer, which arrived at the Rhinebeck ferry this morning about 10 o'clock, was accompanied by Brown's band of Albany and it made a fine appearance. The band rendered some fine selections going to the head of the line.

Two ferryboats were required to take care of the people who wished to visit the city during the day of the parade. On both of them the crowds were very large throughout the morning.

The steamer Trojan discharged a number of passengers at the Point this noon, among them being a number of firemen who came for the parade.

Dinsmore Hose Company of Staatsburgh arrived via the ferry from Rhinecliff this morning and were escorted uptown by Wiltwyck Hose Company representatives.

The excursion of Neptune Hose Company of New Rochelle arrived in Ponckhockie this afternoon. The members were taken care of by Cordts Hose Company, which is well known for its hospitality.

A fine marching drum corps was the A. C. Cheney corps which accompanied the hose company of Castleton. Citizens Hose wore fine uniforms which attracted much attention. They were escorted by delegates from Cornell hose company.

Cordts hose company also took charge of Brewster fire department of that place which came on the steamer Isabella and landing in Ponckhockie.

Union hose company representatives acted as a reception committee for Highland steamer company of Newburgh which arrived on the steamer Commander.

Rockaway fire department made a parade up Broadway this morning and executed a practice drill in preparation for the competition in the afternoon. The company was about 100 strong and went through their evolutions in a remarkable manner. The drill master, armed with a megaphone gave orders and they were put into effect on the instant.

President Peter P. Zeeh and Secretaries J. Phillip Beichert and Lucullus Dunne had their hands full this morning. They were happily equipped with a touring car and were able to make a tour of the city making the final arrangements for the formation of the parade and clearing up other important business. The officers of the local committee certainly deserve a lot of credit for the herculean task which they have performed.

The Nineteenth Separate Company Drum Corps of Poughkeepsie came up on the yacht Scotty this morning to lead the Kingston Exempts in the parade. The drum corps marched uptown headed by Will Campbell, one of the most enthusiastic exempts in the organization. He was a live wire in the convention and acted as teller in the election of officers.

The Madison Drum Corps of Madison, N. J., which led the Rockaway Company, had an attractive uniform similar to that worn by the cadet corps at West Point and made a fine showing. The playing of the corps was in keeping with their appearance.

Large excursions were brought here from Saugerties by the yacht Messenger by the Bunker from Glasco and other points and from Poughkeepsie by the E. B. Gardner. The C. A. Shultz was crowded all day long with many visitors for the parade.

The Griffing Company of Red Hook with their brown uniforms made a fine appearance when they alighted from the ferry this morning. The company has its own band and it can certainly play.

The Walden Band, one of the best in this section, headed the Highland Steamer Company of Newburgh. Collins's Band of thirty pieces, well known throughout the Hudson Valley, accompanied Chapman Steamer Company.

Chief Charles Higham and a delegation from Ontario hose of Middletown were guests of Kemble hose company of Ellenville, which arrived here on Wednesday evening.

F. W. Fannum steamer company, No. 6, of Troy, came down the river this morning and made a fine showing in the line of march.

Jack Casey, one of the live wire firemen of Chatham, and Harry Smith of Philmont, who have been attending the convention are delighted with their entertainment in Kingston. They ran across Timothy A. Fitzpatrick of Chatham, who takes a few days off each year from his duties with U. S. government to renew old acquaintances with the good fellows in the Hudson Valley boys. The trio are stopping at the Eagle hotel.

Chief Patrick Byron of the Troy fire department is also at the Eagle He is accompanied by Secretary George B. Fales of the Troy Exempts the latter being busily engaged in getting out handy reports of the sessions of the convention.

William Joesbury of the Catskill Examiner, William Shufeldt, engineer for the Catskill water department, and Frank Van Dyke of that village were among the visitors to the firemen's parade today and called at The Freeman office.

The J. N. Ring Hose Company and the Chemical No. 4 Company of Rennselaer came over on the 9:40 ferry this morning and paraded to their headquarters at the Wiltwyck hose house, headed by an escort. They came in strong numbers and made a fine appearance. The C. A. Bailey Company of Rennselaer came down on the West Shore early this morning and made for their headquarters at the Wiltwyck Hose house.

The Washington Hook and Ladder Company of Saugerties arrived in town this morning and were escorted by a delegation to the Wiltwyck Hose house where they made their headquarters.

The mounted Board of Water Supply police arrived in Kingston on their firey steeds about ten o'clock and immediately proceeded uptown. They received considerable favorable comment for their appearance and the condition of their horses.

The members of Excelsior Hose Company were all out bright and early this morning preparing to receive their guests and had everything ready for their comfort and convenience at an early hour. Charley Clearwater, the diminutive member of the company, was about early spreading good cheer in his usual wonderful manner. Charley as ever, made a big hit with the visiting firemen.

At Wiltwyck Hose Company's house equal care was taken of the guests. Badges were provided for the guests and refreshments served during the day. Foreman William Zeh received many compliments for the careful and efficient manner in which he handled his many tasks.

Rescue Hook and Ladder Company of Monticello reached Kingston at noon and was met by a delegation from Excelsior Hose Company which escorted them to their headquarters at the latter's hose house.

Kimble Hose Company of Ellenville reached Kingston this morning on the O. & W. and made their headquarters at the Excelsior Hose house. They brought with them their beautiful parade carriage which was on display all morning on Washington avenue and which was being polished by the men with great care and pride. They came about sixty strong.

Along with the Kimbles came the Ontario and Western Hose Company of Ellenville about thirty strong who also made their headquarters at the Excelsior house. What they lacked in numbers they made up for in appearance.

The Sayre Steamer Company of Rhinebeck came over on the ferry at noon and were escorted by a delegation to the Excelsior house uptown.

Up to the time the thunder shower broke over Kingston at 11 o'clock this morning, the Troy City Band rendered a fine concert program in front of Wiltwyck Hose Company's house on Fair street, which was the headquarters for several companies. The band is conceded to be one of the best concert bands in the Hudson valley and on the occasions of its previous visits to Kingston has rendered excellent open air concerts. The band was in the midst of its program when the rain drove the crowd away and the musicians were compelled to take refuge in the hose house.

Pioneer Hose Company, No. 1, of Ellenville, headed by the Clayton Military Band, was parading through Fair street when the rain began falling in torrents at 11 o'clock. The firemen made an excellent appearance and the band was discoursing its sweetest music when the rain taps were opened. The band and company continued for half a block but was compelled to break ranks then and seek shelter. The rain came so rapidly and in such quantity that the bass horn player of the band found his music being shut off. He gargled music through the horn until the band broke ranks. Then he emptied his horn and ran with the others.

Booth hose company of Poughkeepsie arrived in this city and made their headquarters at Wiltwyck fire station. They brought with them their chemical hose wagon which attracted a great deal of attention as did the three white horses which drew it. The company came up 45 strong.

While there is no question that the unfavorable weather of the morning kept thousands of visitors away from Kingston yet the city was thronged with visitors.

The local hotels and restaurants were taxed to their capacity to furnish meals for the visitors but anticipating an unusually large attendance today they had made preparations accordingly.

The visiting companies were entertained at dinner by the local fire companies.

Beside the large number of visiting companies that came to Kingston today a word might be said in regard to the music furnished by the various bands and drum corps which was particularly fine and kept the blood coursing through the veins of the throngs that lined the sidewalks.

Cornwall has a right to feel proud of its fire fighters and their equipment. The Highland Company No. 1 with its red auto fire truck and Storm King Company, No. 2 with its gray auto fire truck, both of Cornwall came in for unmeasured praise. The boys of Highland Company were dressed in natty dark uniforms and at the rear two of their number carried a dummy firemen, which createda good deal of merriment along the line of the parade.

Kingston's new red auto fire truck was without question one of the handsomest in line today. The Poughkeepsie auto truck was also dandy. The bridge city's truck was turned out at the same factory where the Kingston truck was built, and is of a similar model to Kingston's latest addition to its fire fighting equipment.

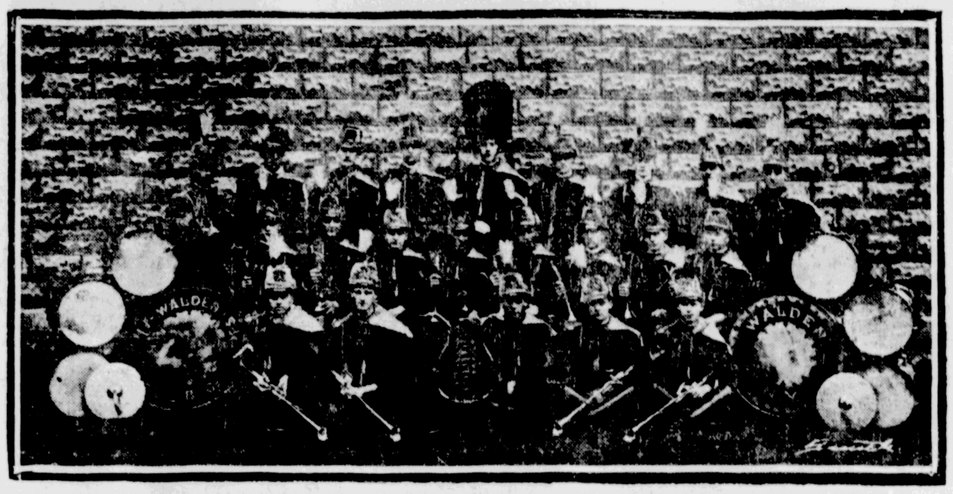

Great credit is due to Chief Wood and the police department for the admirable traffic regulations. The many special policemen that had been sworn in for the occasion also enabled the local force to keep traffic moving and the streets clear for the firemen.

Three False Alarms.

Three false alarms were rung in on Wednesday night and this morning within twenty minutes. The new motor truck purchased by the city was on the job and responded nobly under the direction of Engineer Bruce. The truck arrived at each box before the alarm ceased ringing. Three members of the central fire station are under instruction of Mr. Bruce in running the new truck and have about qualified as competent. Others will be broken in before the expert leaves.

Warner Gets a Warning.

Nathan Warner was arrested on Wednesday night by Policeman Shader for running his automobile without lights. He was arraigned this morning before Recorder Lang but was discharged with a warning.

WALDEN CORPS A FEATURE OF THE PARADE.

The above picture shows the Walden Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps of Walden, which headed Wiley Hose Company of Catskill in today's parade. The corps was organized twenty-seven years ago and has been in continuous existence since. Thus it will be seen that it is one of the oldest drum corps in the state, in addition to which the members and residents of Walden claim that it is one of the best equipped corps of its kind anywhere. The corps consists of twenty-two men, including the drum major. The latter is a necessary part of the corps, and is quite as adept in the use of his baton as the other members are in the use of their various instruments. Not everyone can be a drum major.

221 KILLED IN RECENT AIR RAIDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 17.—Two hundred and twenty-one persons, mainly non-combatants, have been killed and many more mortally hurt in the air raids during the past forty-eight hours.

Dispatches from Amsterdam today stated that 200 persons had been kiled in the great air raid of the allies over Karlsruhe, capital of Baden, Germany, on Tuesday. A telegram from Paris said that five persons were killed at Nancy by bombs from German aeroplanes. The admiralty admits that sixteen persons were killed in the Zeppelin raid over the northeastern coast of England Tuesday night. The loss of life, if any, in German air raids over Belfort and St. Die, was not known here when this dispatch was written.

"Six German aeroplanes took part, advancing in pairs. The French gun-fire drove off four of the machines, but two persisted in the attack. One bomb cut open the skull of Mme. Caquant and killed her daughter on the spot, while they were seated in a hair-dressing parlor. A painter was killed while at work. Of all the victims, only one was a soldier."

THRILLING SHOW AT THE CARNIVAL

The firemen's carnival at the Athletic Field under the auspices of the Central Hook and Ladder Company, made another hit on Wednesday evening, when there was an unusually large attendance and all of the shows were well patronized. One of the best shows on the grounds is the wild animal arena and the feats performed by the trainers with the lions, leopards and tigers were thrilling in the extreme. The Whip, a novel riding device shown for th first time in this city, also was w patronized whi Princess Victo pleased a large number. In fact every show on the grounds is clean and good and all came in for their share of patronage. This evening, weather permitting, should be a banner night in the point of attendance.

Dominoes in School and $10 a Week Salary Cause Trouble.

Editor Kingston Freeman,

Dear Sir:—Since our last school meeting held in May, I have heard certain rumors circulated against my conduct of the school during the past year, and in order to get to the residents and taxable inhabitants of the district, I am asking a little space of your columns.

Our trustee seems to give as a reason for not employing me that there have been several complaints made in regard to what we call "one session," which I will state for the information of those concerned are not really shorter sessions but have as many hours as a regular schoolboy, but we do not have any recess or any noon hour on these days. I thought it would be for the benefit of the children's health to so conduct it on rainy days as a number of our children are required to go a considerable distance in order to reach their homes which they reach at a much earlier hour as school was dismissed at 1 p. m. Then I am also informed that some people are also complaining about dominoes being brought into the school house, which I will admit was a fact. I thought and still think that this was a great deal better amusement on rainy days than to have the children out of doors in the storm. I also think that dominoes educate the children to use their talents counting. Besides I believe that it is safe to say that there are not three families in our district whose homes do not contain a pack of dominoes, even those who have complained. I have also heard reports about cards being played which I emphatically deny. There was one boy who brought a pack of cards into the school house, but I thought it was not right and accordingly ejected the cards. I also heard that the people thought they were paying too much wages, which may be a fact. I have offered to teach, and am still willing to teach for $10 per week, not because I have to teach for a living, but because I like the pupils and take an interest in them and in my own home place. I am taking this opportunity through the kindness of The Freeman to reach the parents and inhabitants of the district. Again thanking you,

I am respectfully,
MRS. J. J. CHRISTIANA.

Kripplebush, June 16.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

DELECTABLE DAINTY.

NOW that strawberry time is with us again a recipe for the delectable strawberry shortcake will be welcomed by every housewife.

Strawberry Shortcake.

Three cupfuls flour, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful salt, one egg, one and one-quarter cupfuls milk, one-half cupful shortening. Bake in a cake tin, smoothing dough out with spoon. When done split and butter top and bottom and set aside to cool. Wash and hull two boxes strawberries. Slightly mash one boxful; cut the berries of the other box in halves with scissors. The mashed strawberries are put between the cake, the others put on top of the cake, on which is a thick layer of whipped cream. Half the quantity may be used for a small family.

Below is given a recipe for pickle, that toothsome dainty which piques a jaded appetite:

Cabbage Pickle.

Take sufficient cabbage to fill a two gallon jar. Small, compact heads are best for pickles. The cabbage should be quartered and tied up to prevent the leaves from falling apart and cooked well in salt water until tender. Drain, and when cold press out all the brine. Cover them completely with cider vinegar and allow them to stand for several days or even a week.

When ready to make the pickle, take one gallon of vinegar, in which boil two ounces of turmeric, two ounces of cinnamon, a few pieces of sliced ginger root, one-quarter of a pound of white mustard seed, one ounce of celery seed, two pounds of brown sugar and half a cupful of made mustard. Squeeze the cabbage carefully out of the first vinegar and remove the tang. Pour over them the boiling hot spiced and sweetened vinegar. Use in three weeks.

Sun and Air for Moths.

Moths in general are likely to affect only articles which are put away and left undisturbed for some little time. Apartments and closets that are frequently aired and swept are not apt to be seriously affected. In fact, airing and sunlight are probably the best as well as the oldest remedies.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 17.—Trading in the stock market was quiet this morning but many issues showed a stronger tone and some substantial gains were made. Most interest was attached to the trading in U. S. Steel Common, which advanced ⅝ to 61⅛. The buying was induced by statements of increased demand for finished steel products and higher prices. Interborough-Metropolitan Common was another strong feature, rising ¾ to 24, and the preferred after yielding ¼ to 74⅛ moved up to 74¾. New York Central was in good demand, advancing ¾ to 88½. Union Pacific opened ¼ higher at 129¼ and then reacted to 128¾. Reading after starting ⅜ higher at 146¼ receded to 145½. The majority of other issues showed fractional losses.

Noon.—Stocks were supplied freely in the late forenoon, causing declines in most of the leading issues. The tone was heavy. The only issue scoring an advance was Interborough-Metropolitan Preferred which sold at 75⅛ against 72½ at the close yesterday, an advance of ⅜ since the opening. U. S. Steel Common declined ½ to 60⅝. Westinghouse Electric a point to 98¼. American Can ⅝ to 46, American Smelting ⅛ to 81⅜, Union Pacific ¼ to 128½, and Goodrich Rubber ½ to 52¼. Interborough-Metropolitan common dropped ¼ to 24¾. Money loaning at two per cent.

2:30 p. m.—General Electric one of the war stocks was a feature in the late trading. In the first half of the last hour this issue sold around 174, against 172 at the close on Wednesday. Some issues shaded but the undertone was steady. Bethlehem Steel and Baldwin Locomotive made good gains. The volume of business was small.

The stock market closed steady; governments unchanged; other bonds dull and irregular.

PERILS OF BAD AIR.

Reduced Vitality, Loss of Appetite and General Bad Health.

Air is bad when it is overheated, when it contains an excess of moisture and when it is chemically contaminated. This is the conclusion of the New York state commission on ventilation as summarized by Professor C. E. A. Winslow, chairman.

The first indictment against bad air shows that an increase in temperature beyond the normal 70 degrees produces serious derangement of the vasomotor mechanism of the body, resulting in a rise of temperature, increased pulse and a lowered blood pressure, with a corresponding decrease in efficiency, both physical and mental. In addition to this, overheating conduces to an undesirable congestion of the mucous membranes of the nose, thus possibly paving the way for colds, sore throats and attacks of various germ diseases.

The work of the commission also proves that chemical accumulations in the air as a result of air stagnation bring about a decreased appetite for food, which, in turn, must have an unfavorable effect on the entire body. In the commission's experiments the people living in fresh air ate 4½ to 13 per cent more than those living in stagnant air.

"These experiments," says Professor Winslow, "indicate that fresh air is needed at all times and in all places. While we have changed our ideas as to what causes bad air, ventilation is just as essential to remove heat produced by human bodies as it was once thought to be to remove the carbon dioxide produced by human lungs, and it is now proved also to be essential for carrying away chemical products which exert a measurable effect upon the appetite for food. People who live and work in overheated and unventilated rooms are reducing their vitality and rendering themselves an easy prey to all sorts of diseases."

WARRING ON RUST.

Problems With Which Iron and Steel Experts Are Wrestling.

This age of steel has roused a world wide battle with rust, and more chemists and other experts are studying possible weapons for this battle than are busy on almost any other industrial problem. Concrete owes much of its present growth to the difficulty of protecting steel and iron against rust.

Absolutely pure iron will not rust, and fairly pure iron will rust only slowly. One way, therefore, is to improve the grade of iron, and manufacturers now sell iron that is guaranteed to withstand rust for considerable periods. It is possible, though expensive, to purify iron completely by electricity, and electrolytic iron, as it is called, may before long be common commercially.

Surface coats of protection are, however, the favorite methods of today, and many such coatings have appeared lately. The latest one is a metal coat that can be applied on an iron or steel structure after it has been erected in much the same way that paint is applied. Finely powdered metals—such as tin, lead or zinc, or all three in proper proportion—are mixed in oil and painted on the bridge or column or other structure that needs protection. Then the painted surface is heated by a hand torch or in whatever way is most convenient.

The oil burns away, and the powdered metal melts, but does not run. As the metal cools it takes a tight grip on the iron surface and forms a tin or alloy coat, which stops rust.—Saturday Evening Post.

Selecting the Golf Ball.

The small heavy ball will go farther than the lighter or larger ball for the player who can hit it extremely hard owing to its less resistance from the air. Because of its weight and small size it can bore its way through the air almost like a bullet. In the case of a lady or a very light hitter I firmly believe they will get much better results with the large light ball since because of its greater resiliency it will get the maximum distance from a much lighter blow. So my advice would be for a light hitter to use the light ball, the average hitter the medium weight and the hard hitter the heavy ball.—Outing.

Phi Beta Kappa.

Phi Beta Kappa are the names of three letters of the Greek alphabet, the initial letters of three Greek words, Philosophia Biou Kubernetes, which means "philosophy the guide of life."

This is the name of the oldest of the Greek letter college societies. Membership is bestowed as an honor for exceptionally good scholarship. The society originated at William and Mary college in 1776, but has extended to many other colleges and universities. There are about 17,000 names in the catalogue. Members wear a gold watch key as a badge, with emblem and inscriptions.—Philadelphia Press.

They Help In a Way.

"Riches are not everything," declared bitterly the poor, but honest, suitor, who had just been rejected. "They cannot insure happiness."

"Perhaps not," replied the practical maiden, "but they at least provide means to pay the premiums on the policy!"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Correct.

Bill—Yes; he gets his income from an apartment house and lives on the top floor!—New York Globe.

The nobleness of life depends on its consistency, clearness of purpose, quiet and ceaseless energy.—Ruskin.

Proves Early Use of Coal.

Excavations of an ancient Roman villa, near Liege, disclosed fragments of coal, leading to the belief that the fuel was mined in Belgium as far back as the beginning of the Christian era.

The Sunday school has had a very prosperous year with a good attendance. Everyone will be made welcome that wish to attend at 2 o'clock every Sunday. Nobody too old or too young to come and help us.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 17, 1915.

No one has a more ardent belief than we have in the duty of extending generous hospitality to guests, but there is no sense in going insane on the subject. There ought to be a limit to the blocking of public thoroughfares by processions. There are other streets than those which are crowded with traffic, and they are pleasanter for marching. We hope that this will be taken into account on future occasions.

It seems that the Germans are not hereafter to be alone in attacking unfortified towns with bombs from flying machines. A fleet of French aeroplanes bombarded Karlsruhe, the capital of Baden, on Wednesday, killing 19 persons and wounding 14. Karlsruhe is a city about the same size as New Haven, Conn., and is just as peaceful. The assault would be unjustifiable and outrageous but for the fact that the Germans set the example, and it is the law of war that when one belligerent breaks the rules the other may make reprisals. The German press has been jubilant over the bombardment of English villages and of London, but the Karlsruhe affairs is "a nefarious and senseless act," according to the Berlin Tages-Zeitung, which demands "unscrupulous retaliation." Here we see the possibility of civilians in every part of Europe being slaughtered as extensively as the soldiers. What will happen one of these days when an American citizen is shattered by a bomb in a town where he has a perfect right to be? Will that be essentially different from the Lusitania massacre?

It is significant that no arguments have been made before the Suffrage Committee of the Constitutional Convention in favor of direct primaries, while several powerful speeches have been made by political leaders in favor of going back to the convention system and to other obsolete devices, such as an open instead of a secret ballot. The latter was adopted for the purpose of protecting voters from intimidation and to discourage bribery, but it has been only moderately successful in these respects. It surely costs a lot of money, and we seem to get no better men into office than we did a generation ago. It may be heresy to intimate such a thing, but we are not sure that it is always a bad thing for voters to be intimidated or bought. It depends upon who does the tampering and what his motive is. We have already called attention to Senator Brackett's fears that we are drifting toward monarchy, and now we find Delegate Guthrie saying that unless there is a marked change in public opinion "our Government is doomed, and it is merely a question of time when we shall begin to drift from anarchy into despotism." We hardly think it is as bad as all that, and we believe that the matter of altering our election laws should be left to the free action of the Legislature. Mistakes have been made, and more will follow, but in the end we shall have a better system than the Convention can devise at this moment.

The great trouble with Bryan's general arbitration scheme is that the disputes which can be arbitrated would not lead to war anyway, while the really troublesome quarrels cannot be settled in that way. Former President Taft pointed out this fact in a speech in Philadelphia Wednesday night, laying down the principle that issues between nations are divided into two classes—justiciable and non-justiciable. As instances of the first class he cited the questions of the Alaskan boundary, the Behring Sea fishing, and the Alabama claims. As examples of non-justiciable differences he mentioned the Japanese naturalization dispute and the question whether American citizens of the Jewish faith shall be permitted to do business in Russia. It must be evident to anybody that this country will never leave to the decision of outsiders the question whether Chinese and Japanese shall be allowed to overrun our territory and mongrelize our future population. We have no sympathy with the Russian prejudice against Jews, but it must be admitted that that country has a perfect right to exclude any class of persons it pleases, with or without reason. When nations with opposing views on non-justiciable subjects face each other settlement can be made only through force or through bargaining. It is obvious that a feeble nation can neither use force effectively or make a good trade with a stronger antagonist. Fortunately, a display of force is often as effective as its use. Washington, Adams, and the other great founders of our republic knew about this and urged the duty of preparedness, and their advice is not out of date.

YOUR TALENT—WHAT IS IT?

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Whatever may be said of men and their wants and needs, it certainly is true that not all the women in the world need to or want to engage in productive work, but it seems rather a pity to drop short of any effective accomplishment, beyond the merely ornamental, just because one happens to be a woman.

For everyone, the world over, is happier for the ability to render some service in a manner to inspire admiration; and, in the main, everyone has a talent, latent or otherwise, for something. It may not be for anything great, but what matter, if there is one thing in which the worker stands supreme, or, at least, worthy note?

If one has a voice that gives the hope or the certainty of charming friends and pouring oil on troubled waters wherever one goes, it is likely to be trained to as great a degree of proficiency as funds will permit. But if one's particular forte runs along some lesser way it is often neglected, sometimes even undiscovered because one may be trying one's poor little best to force an art which Nature never intended to grow.

There is an art in wonderful cookery—a high and not an easy art, at that—and if one's particular talent makes it easy to excel in that field and in no other, why not aim at something within the power of reaching and enjoy the consciousness of supremacy somewhere, sure all the while of conferring plenty of pleasure?

Somehow, we foolish folk get the notion that regardless of the difficulties along the way to the mountaintop we must scramble there after a fashion, no matter what we skip as we go, and whether we gain or give any pleasure through the struggle. But, you know, there is nothing appealing in indifferent art or mediocre service of any sort, while a genuine talent for cooking is something to work upon.

Herbert Spencer says that happiness will come to anyone who learns fully to use his powers.

Probably the majority of us feel a bit dismayed when we pause to ask regarding our particular talent and we may look in vain for anything to dignify by so pretentious a name. But there always is one thing that can be done rather easier and more tunefully than all else. Why not work upon it and evolve the latent song? One never knows just how far one can climb until an effort is made to use slumbering powers. Perhaps we rarely think about it except in an offhand way to wish there was some one thing in which we might excel if we genuinely tried—and generally there is.

Suppose there is a real talent for nursing, an intuitive understanding of the needs and wants of sick folk. Why not develop the art a bit, not professionally, but along quiet ways that make one's presence in the sick room a delight? There are comparatively few upon whom nature sets that distinctive seal, and it seems rather a pity to let the gracious talent remain unused.

It is a mighty sweet, helpful power to be able to employ—that of nursing, when it becomes an art; and one must enjoy the consciousness of knowing just how to dispense comfort and a bit of cheer in a sick room.

A pretty picture that pleasantly flashed across my way awhile ago was that of a group of children, boys and girls, all eyes and ears, sitting in the twilight, listening and listening to the most charming outpouring of stories that came from somewhere in the storehouse of a young girl's mind or from her clever imagination.

She had a talent that scarcely needed urging, sweet and wholesome just running riot as it did, but one wonders where it might have led and how it might have grown if she had counted it a talent and developed it accordingly. If happiness comes by way of learning to use one's powers, and the chief art within sight is that of telling a story to open wondering eyes and set small ears a-tingling, it is a mighty pleasant way to invite it.

Naturally enough, if we might select out talents, we would be stars of the very first magnitude, but we must keep within limitations, and fortunately limitations have a way of expanding as they are worked upon.

The best most of us can do is to look over our individual gardens where talents, or their next-door neighbors, possibilities, grow, and tend and care for the most likely until they begin to assume the fair prospect of something apart from the ordinary, something worth while.

Valuable Inaccuracy.

Pat was a witty young recruit, who was taking instruction in marksmanship. The squad had finished firing. Pat was brought to task for his poor shooting, and told that he must do better at the next distance; there were to be seven rounds of quick firing.

"Now, Pat," the sergeant told him "fire at target No. 5." Pat banged away, and hit target No. 4 seven times in succession.

"What target did you aim at?" asked the irate officer.

"No. 5, sor," answered Pat.

"And you have hit No. 4 every time."

"Bedad, sor," retorted Pat, "that would be a grand thing in war. Sure, I might aim at a private and hit a gin'ral!"—Youth's Companion.

A Problem.

Little eight-year old Florence, had a birthday recently and her mother gave her a party. During the afternoon the little girls had been comparing their ages.

"Mother," asked Florence, during the evening in a perplexed manner, "how does it come that all the other little girls of my age are nine or ten and I'm only eight?"—Harper's Magazine.

Maybe So!

Among the collection of stories in the possession of Representatives Anderson of Minnesota is the yarn of old Chief Singing Hound, a patriarchal Indian on one of the far western reservations. Tourists frequently visited the old man. He had the dignity of a king and a taciturn disposition that belied his name.

One day a party of eastern travelers hunted out the old man. Among them was a young woman who was togged out in the latest style. Her neck was bare, as were her arms. Her garments—what there were of them—were skimpily cut.

She was fascinated by the chief. Fixing her large, calflike eyes upon him she stared and stared exactly as though he were a griffin or a unicorn. The chief began to show symptoms of being excessively bored. He eyed the young woman from head to foot in a chilling manner, but it did not do a particle of good.

Finally the young woman spoke. "What a perfectly lovely blanket!" she exclaimed. "I wish I had it!" She referred to the blanket which enwrapped the chief.

Without a word he removed it and tossed it at her feet. He gave her—and her costume—a parting glance.

"You take um," he grunted. "You need um most!"

And he stalked away.—Washington Star.

SECOND PART OF BRYAN'S SERIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 17.—William J. Bryan's promised second installment of his "causeless war" essay was issued today. After denouncing the strife raging in Europe and declaring that all wars are waged for selfish ends, he directs pointed shafts at those who advocate preparedness as the best insurance for peace. He also praises President Wilson's efforts for peace.

The statement follows:

"The conflict now raging in Europe has been described as the 'causeless war,' but since no one would be bold enough to lay the blame for such an unholy situation upon an overruling Providence, it must find its origin in acts for which man and man alone is responsible.

"It is not a race war; on the contrary the races are quite inexplicably mixed. Latin joins with Saxon; the Frank is the ally of the Slav; while in the opposing ranks Teuton and Turk fight side by side.

"Neither is it a religious war. On the Bosphorus the Cross and the Crescent make common cause. Protestant Kaiser and Catholic Emperor have linked their fortunes together and hurl their veteran legions against an army in which are indiscriminately mingled communicants of the Greek Church, of the Church of Rome and of the Church of England.

"Nor yet is it a rivalry between families. The leading actors in this unprecedented tragedy are related by blood, but kinship seems to be a negligible factor—it explains neither friendship nor enmities. No race, religion or family, each with many wars to answer for, can plead not guilty in the present inquiry. So far as can be judged, there appears upon the surface no cause that by any known standard can be regarded as adequate for such a cataclysm as we are now witnessing.

"The notes that passed from Chancellory to Chancellory were couched in most friendly language. These notes could not have been intended to deceive. Sovereigns visited each other and were received with every evidence of cordiality and good will. This hospitality could not have been insincere.

"Each ruler declared that he did not want war; would they all say this if an adequate cause for war actually existed? They have all denied responsibility for the war. Would they have done so if they had regarded the war as either necessary or desirable?

"But there is even better proof, aye, indisputable proof that no sufficient cause existed, viz: The conclusion to be drawn from inaction.

"Would not these rulers have busied themselves trying to save their subjects by the eradication of the cause, had they known of the existence of such cause? Would they have spent their time in social festivities and in exchanging compliments, had they known that they were on the brink of war?

"It is inconceivable. It would be a gross libel on them—one and all, to charge such a wanton disregard of their sacred duty.

"What then was the cause? If I have correctly analyzed the situation, the war is a natural result of a false philosophy. Theories of life are invisible but they control for good or for evil. They enter our very being and may be as deadly to the moral man as germs of disease, taken into the body, are deadly to the physical man. The fundamental precept of this false philosophy is that 'might makes right.' It is not proclaimed now as loudly as it once was but it is often acted upon in particular cases, by those who would be unwilling to endorse it as a general principle.

"The individual makes this maxim his excuse for violating three commandments that stand in his way. This maxim also leads nations to violate these same three commandments, for the same purpose but on a larger scale. Strange that men should fail to apply to nations the moral principles which are now so generally applied to the individual unit of a nation.

"The tendency is to condemn the violation of these commandments, not in proportion to the injury dne, but rather in inverse proportion. No one will dispute the validity of the injunction against covetousness as long as the object coveted is of little value or not greatly desired; but the last and all inclusive specification viz. 'Or anything that is thy neighbor's' is sometimes interpreted by nations to except a neighbor's vineyard or a neighbor's territory. Covetousness turns to might as the priciple to be invoked and the greater the unlawful desire, the firmer the faith in the false principle.

"Conquest is the word used to describe the means employed for securing the thing desired, if the force is employed by a nation, and conquest violates the commandments—thou shalt not steal and thou shalt not kill.

"But what sophistry can rulers convince themselves, that while petit larceny is criminal, grand larceny is patriotic; that while it is reprehensible for one man to kill another for his money, it is glorious for one nation to put to the sword the inhabitants of another nation in order to extend boundaries?

"It is a mockery of moral distinctions to hang one man for taking the life of another, either for money or in revenge, and then make a hero of another man who watches 'through slaughter to a throne, and shuts the doors of mercy on mankind.'

"As in the case of the individual, the violation of the commandments—thou shalt not covet—thou shalt not steal—and thou shalt not kill, are usually traceable to the violation of the first and great commandment—thou shalt have no other Gods before me—that is to the putting of self before service of the Creator.

"The violation of these commandments by nations is not always but usually due to selfishness—the putting of supposed material advantages before obedience to the Divine law.

"War is occasionally altruistic in purpose and the soldier always exhibits unselfishness of a high order, but as a rule, conflicts are waged for selfish ends.

"The individual finds that Jehovah's justice cannot be evaded; for wrong doing works its own punishment on the wrong doer in the form of perverted character—even when he escapes the penalties of human law. The nation is as powerless to repeal or to ignore with impunity the laws of God—'Though hand join in hand those shalt not be unpunished.'

"If I have made it clear that the doctrine that might makes right is the most common cause of war, we may pass to the consideration of a maxim quite sure to be applied in war, namely, that 'like cures like' the theory upon which retaliation rests.

"The two are so closely allied that it is almost inevitable that those who endorse the former will resort to the latter—one represents the spirit of evil, the other its most familiar manifestation. Retaliation is rivalry in wrong doing—a neck and neck race toward the bottomless pit. And yet there are many believers in the gospel of force who have brought themselves to think that cruelty could be cured by greater cruelty—that the only way to win an antagonist away from inhuman acts is to surpass him in inhumanities. Absurdity of absurdities.

"But might must find a pretext for arming itself; and what is the pretext? There was a time when men openly advocated war as a thing to be desired; commended it to each generation as a sort of tonic to tone up the moral system and prevent degeneracy, but we have passed that day.

"Now, all join in the chorus for peace. And how, according to the jingoes, shall peace be insured? 'By preparedness' say these sons of Mars. Prepare all, prepare and equip yourselves with the most modern implements of destruction; arm, drill, get ready and then stand with finger on a hair-trigger musket and preserve peace—yes, preserve it until some one, by accident or design, gives the signal. Then fall upon each other with cries for blood. Preparedness is the kindling; opportunity is the match.

"We dare not trust the peace of the world to those who spend their time in getting ready for wars which should never come. Half the energy employed in preparing for war would effectually prevent war if used in propagating the principles which make for peace.

"Intead of preventing war, preparedness provokes war because it is impossible to coerce the people into bearing the burdens incident to increasing and continuous preparation without cultivating hatred as if it were a national virtue. There must be some one to fear; some other preparing nation that must be represented as plotting for war.

"Hate sets up sham standards of honor and converts every wound into a festering sore; hate misunderstands; hate misinterprets; hate maligns its supposed adversary, while every contractor, every battleship builder and manufacturer of munitions of war applauds.

"How can preparedness prevent war if all prepare? Each step taken by one nation toward more complete preparedness excites the other nations to additional purchases and new levies until all have exhausted their productive industries and menaced their moral progress.

"The doctrine that preparedness will prevent war will not stand the test of logic and the conflagration in Europe shows that it fails when tested by experience.

"If any nation is without excuse for entering into a mad rivalry with the belligerent nations in preparation for war, it is the United States. We are protected on either side by thousands of miles of ocean and this possession is worth more to us than any number of battleships. We have an additional protection in the fact, known to everyone that we have the men with whom to form an army of defense if we are ever attacked and it is known also that we have the money too, more money than we ever would have had if all the surplus earnings of the people had been invested in armament. We not only do not need additional preparation, but we are fortunate in not having it since it seems impossible for a nation to have what is called preparedness, without having along with it a disposition to use its preparedness on the slightest provocation.

"The leading participants in the present war are the nations that were best prepared and I fear it would have been difficult for us to keep out of this war if we had been as well prepared as they.

"Happily for our nation that we have in the White House at the present time a president who believes in setting the whole world a good example instead of following the bad example which it sets in this matter. What an unspeakable misfortune it would have been, if in such an hour as this, the nation had been under the leadership of a president inflamed by the false philosophy which has plunged Europe into the abyss of war."

TABASCO.

Jacob T. Gorsline has bought a new Cortland wagon of M. C. Black.

Mrs. W. P. Dymond and Mrs. R. Churchill were caught in the shower Tuesday afternoon at W. H. Gorsline's.

Lorenzo Decker is plowing for Orrin Lee.

Morris Reberg has three boarders and expects several more in a few days.

Knew Whereof He Spoke.

One day, in the lively old time of cowboy activities, a timid tenderfoot at Bitter Creek asked tremblingly if that bad man, Bill Busher, was hanging around there yet. "No," replied the native who was asked. "But he was last week." "Are you sure?" said the tenderfoot. "Positive. I had hold of the rope."

104,000 Men

In the jungles and fields, in our factories, etc., 104,000 men are employed to meet the demand for Goodyear tires.

No other tire commands anywhere near such favor. And this spring has shown, in sales to dealers, an increase of 52 per cent.

Extra Values

The reason is, we fortify our tires. We give the best that others give, plus five exclusive features. In costly ways, employed by no one else, we combat:

Rim-Cuts	Insecurity
Blowouts	Punctures
Loose Treads	Skidding

And we never skimp. Despite all price reductions, Goodyears are better than ever. Lately we have added three conspicuous improvements.

Some Goodyear supremacies can be seen at a glance. Compare size and thickness with the average tire. Compare number of fabric plies.

Prices Down

Goodyear has made in about two years three great price reductions, totaling 45 per cent. The last was on February 1st. Our matchless output enables a value which no other maker can duplicate.

Goodyears mean less trouble, less upkeep. That is proved by our exclusive features, our dominant place, and the swelling Goodyear tide. We urge you to join this army. Any dealer will supply you.

MARCH FORWARD

Yes, that is a good motto, for the man that marches forward is the only one who succeeds, as the one who stands still and the one who marches backward never reach the goal.

Now the Freeman Want Ads method of doing business is the march forward method. It is the last word in modern business ideas, and it will be well for you if you adopt it, no matter what line of endeavor you are in.

Freeman Want Ad business methods spell victory, so march forward with the Freeman Want Columns as your aid.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, June 17.—Miss Anna Kilcawley of New Paltz Normal was a week end guest of her parents at Highland Mills.

Mrs. George Eyett, who underwent an operation at Vassar Hospital, is improving finely and her friends of this place are very glad to hear this good news, and all will welcome her home, as soon as she is able to return.

E. F. Cummings has sold his grocery business, and a new one will run the store. Sorry to have M. Cummings and family leave.

On July 1 several from here will attend a dinner and dance out at Chodikee Lake Inn. They have one of the boat crews stationed there, and everyone expects a gay evening.

"Sherwood Inn" on Grand street is now quite an attractive place. The Syracuse boys arrived a few days ago, and they say they make the lower part of the town look fine, as they go to and from this place to the river to practice. They display good strokes and seem to be a heavy lot of fellows. They are trying their muscles to win out if possible. They have a large crew, and several substitutes, who are exercising also. On June 18 the Moule House at The Pines expect the California crew. They were there last season and certainly were a lot of manly fellows. The rows will take place on June 28, and all look forward to a big crowd. It is to be hoped the weather may prove fine. It seems too bad after great preparations to have a failure of it. Everyone is anxious for their favorite one to win. Your reporter has watched the practice this week, and finds great responsibility resting with all. Rowing is very uncertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Osterhoudt of this place entertained several friends last Sunday.

Mrs. P. M. Terpening of Poughkeepsie was a guest last Sunday of friends here.

Mrs. Raymond Williams of North Road entertained relatives from New York city last week.

Mrs. Dickinson, sister of Benjamin Johnston, our station agent, at West Shore, arrived here a few days ago with her son, Arthur, who recently graduated from the Medical College in Albany, where they reside. They are now visiting their relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Feeter left town last Saturday for a vacation. They have gone to their camp and expect to remain some time.

The W. C. T. U. Society will meet on June 17 at the home of Mrs. George Cornell on White street. All members are requested to be present on that day.

Christian Endeavor of Presbyterian Church held a meeting recently at which the election of officers took place. These elected people hold office for six months only. The business was very satisfactory, as well as the selection of people who will run the affairs.

Tuesday evening there was an interesting meeting at the Highland Camp, Sons of Veterans, and they had a first-class time.

Mrs. H. Schumaker of Vineyard avenue entertained her friend, Miss Leah Van Aken, and Norman Schutz of Poughkeepsie last Sunday. Miss Van Aken was the very popular reporter of Poughkeepsie Evening Star, but recently resigned to enter soon a partnership deal, which her many friends hope will be a very successful one. She was highly esteemed by all in the Evening Star office, as she was presented Monday with seven beautiful pieces of cut glass. Her many friends here wish for her pleasant sailing on the matrimonial steamer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass and Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker motored to Ashokan reservoir recently. They rode 125 miles and enjoyed the beautiful scenery and the road up there. They report it is in fine condition.

Miss Ethel Decker and friend were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Donovan spent Monday afternoon in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Alma Burgher of Staatsburgh was guest the past week for several days of Capt. and Mrs. R. H. Decker at their home, Glen View.

Philip Schantz, Jr., is home from college. His many friends welcomed him warmly. He has been in New York a few days.

Mrs. Alfred Hopper of Vineyard avenue has been spending several days in Brooklyn with her son and wife, and had a delightful time there.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Terpening, Miss Burgher and Mrs. R. H. Decker motored last Saturday to Newburgh and then to Tuxedo Park. They enjoyed the grand trip. It is a fine ride and the country was beautiful after the rain of Friday.

The baseball team of this place had to take a back seat Saturday. Wyckoff is manager. There is not much interest in games and they all are poorly attended. The grounds are not good and people have to sit in the hot sun, which they are not fond of. The accommodations are not at all attractive and to make a success of anything people must not go on day by day doing things in a slip shod way but remember that well done acts, like well done meals, are as a rule easy to digest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gerlich of Wilcox avenue are the happy parents of a young daughter which arrived at their home Tuesday. Mother and child are doing nicely.

Children's Day at the M. E. Church last Sunday morning was observed with the usual pomp. The Sunday school, numbering 163, looked beautiful as they marched in the auditorium and took possession of the pews in the center aisle. The church was handsomely decorated with daisies and greens. Fred Metcalf, the superintendent, had charge of the well rendered program of solos, duets and recitations and everyone performed their respective numbers in a most creditable manner and much credit is due all who had the exercises under their management. Each year the Methodist people celebrate this children's occasion with great pomp and ceremony. The pastor, Rev. J. C. Coddington, delivered a grand sermon to the children and it is evident he can interest both young and older people as well and he also baptized several babies. This service was beautiful and impressive. The music of pipe organ, cornets and trombone was fine and all feel elated over the success of one more day given over to the children.

Daughters of America held a meeting on Wednesday evening with a large membership present. At their last meeting they elected officers and the reporter was informed that installation would take place the first meeting in July. They have very interesting sessions and their work continues through the summer months. No vacation for D. A. people. This organization is a good one as there is a benefit connected with it. The D. of A. is not building a structure by which any of them expect to make their names famous and all hope the material of which it is composed may be the best and hold together by nails of pure motive and noble purpose. Lodge work is made up of success or failure and those who are most successful are the true and best workers. Success along lodge lines stimulates to greater activity. All our actions should be for the good of those around us. The present alone is ours. Wasted opportunities are never presented to us again. Then let all work as one in the order, make the most of our opportunities and then the world may be better for our having lived in it.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Williams of Kingston were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller, and Saturday they all motored to Clintondale, Modena and New Paltz and called on friends, and on Sunday, they motored to Newburgh and spent the day with relatives there. All had a delightful time.

Last Sunday, Capt. and Mrs. R. H. Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Terpening and Miss Burgher were guests at the Mitchell House.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Upright and son Harold, spent last Sunday in the Metropolis. It was Harold's birthday and the trip was taken on that account. He has been in for several weeks with fever and is now able to be around among his friends. He is looking fine and says he is feeling good, and all are glad he has fully recovered. He will soon resume his musical work.

Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Relyea at the river. They report a pleasant time.

All the fruit growers were happy when the rain of Tuesday afternoon came. It was a grand thing, for without this, fruit and gardens would suffer greatly. Strawberries are large and plenty of them, and all other fruit will be benefited by the rain. It is hoped there will be an abundance of all kinds for so many people depend upon it for their living and if good heavy crops come on people can depend upon having plenty of good things to eat in the winter.

Glad to see Royal Nickerson of Poughkeepsie in town, his friends were glad to see him. He was always interested in affairs here, he likes it in Poughkeepsie, but still has a desire to come back to Highland occasionally.

Mrs. Merbeck, who has been ill a long time, does not improve much. Her daughters are with her and all hope for her recovery.

Mrs. Lake has been entertaining friends from Chatham recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of Vineyard avenue were in Kingston last Sunday.

The Missionary Circle of the M. E. Church held a closing of the year meeting and gold and silver contest Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors, and there were present, a very large delegation of members and guests. Mrs. J. Smedes and Mrs. Edward Rhodes were the hostess and Miss B. Brinckerhoff was in charge of the program. Light refreshments were served and the meeting proved to be one of the best on record.

Mr. and Mrs. Coutant had guests from Poughkeepsie Sunday.

June 26th, we are told, there will be a food sale on M. E. Church lawn. There will be plenty of good eatables to purchase for your Saturday evening meal and Sunday. Do not forget the date, the place, what it is to be and what it is to be for. Mrs. H. D. Elting is the chairman and she has a good lot of women to assist, who are first class bread, biscuit, cake, pie and salad makers. Just try them and see.

Mrs. Henry Hovet and daughter, Mrs. Jack Leo, of New York city are at their summer home on Maple avenue.

The Rev. G. H. Scofield, pastor of Presbyterian Church, has returned from a few days spent in New York city.

Mrs. George Main, Sr., had relatives visiting her from Poughkeepsie the week end; also G. Main was home over Sunday from Kingston.

Funeral services for Isaac Craft were held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Kipp, last Sunday afternoon. He had lived in Highland for many years and was well known and highly respected. He had been a patient sufferer for a long time. The Rev. J. C. Coddington preached a very fine sermon. The floral emblems were very fine. The hearfelt sympathy of many friends go out to those who are left to mourn. The funeral director was W. E. Wilcox.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Metcalf recently had as their guests for an evening of pleasure the Sunday school board of the M. E. Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Blakely had friends visiting them last week from out of town.

Lawyer A. D. Lent was a business visitor in Kingston recently.

Not Paint

The worst mistake in painting is not putting-off. That costs about 10 per cent; you keep your money a year and pay 10 per cent for it.

Paint would have to come-down 25 per cent to make 10 percent on the job, for wages do not go-down.

The worst mistake is "cheap" paint. It costs from 50 per cent to 100, first cost, and another in wear.

What a liar "cheap" is! "Put-off" is bad-enough; "cheap" is ten times worse.

DEVOE.

An important meeting of the officers and chairmen of committees of the Kingston Academy Alumni Association will be held in the academy on Friday evening at 8:30.

The Rose Card Club met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Minnie Johnston on West Chestnut street. Prizes were won by the American Beauty roses. During the afternoon, delicious refreshments were served.

The piano pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Dodge will give an informal recital at Mr. Dodge's studio on Green street on Saturday afternoon of this week, affording an opportunity for the parents of the pupils to take note of the musical progress made during the past year.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Laura Vail Washburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Washburn of Rockledge, Saugerties, to Lieutenant Gilbert Marshall, coast artillery corps, U. S. A. The announcement was made at a luncheon given by the bride's mother on Wednesday.

Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. C. K. Moulton were the hostesses at a delightful suffrage tea, given at the home of Mrs. Simmons on Albany avenue on Tuesday afternoon. The rooms were prettily decorated with yellow iris. The speakers who were very interesting indeed, were Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Mrs. Gordon Norrie and Miss Youmans, all of New York city, and Mrs. John Searing of this city. During the afternoon punch and wafers were served, Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Michael presiding over the artistically decorated table. They were assisted in serving the refreshments by Miss Matthews, Miss Tappen, Miss Overbaugh, Miss Fessenden, Miss Rusack and Miss Balthazar. A neat little sum was realized for "The cause," as there were about sixty ladies present.

Bell-Todd.

Miss Emma Todd of Dry Brook and Harry Bell of Arkville were married in Pine Hill on Friday, June 11, by the Rev. D. N. F. Blakeney.

Ulster Alumni Banquet.

The executive committee of the Ulster Academy Alumni Association wishes to call the attention of all graduates who wish to attend the banquet to the necessity of responding by Saturday morning to the management, that they may know how many orders to place with the cateress.

Myers-Van Etten.

Miss Ruth Van Etten, daughter of George Van Etten, the well known lawyer of this city, and Ira Cortland Myers of this city, were married on Wednesday, June 6, at the home of the groom's brother at Three Bridges, N. J. A reception was held in their honor at the summer home of the bride's father at West Hurley on Wednesday night.

Miller-Hummel.

Clarence E. Miller and Miss Charlotte Maye Hummel, both of this city, were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey W. Barber, on Elmendorf street, by the Rev. R. C. Dodds. Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for an extended honeymoon to be spent in New York city and vicinity and upon their return will reside on Franklin street, where a newly furnished home awaits them.

Ulster Alumni Reunion.

Next Tuesday evening, June 22, the Alumni Association of Ulster Academy will hold its annual reception and banquet at Ulster Academy. Every effort is being made to bring together just as many of the old Ulster graduates from each class as possible, making this last reception and banquet one of the largest and best reunions in the history of the academy. Already much interest is being shown by the members of the older classes, especially, judging from the number of invitations already accepted. It is desired to make the banquet an especial feature of this last gathering, and in order that there may be covers laid for every person wishing to attend the banquet, it is important that acceptances be sent in promptly to the members of the executive committee so that proper provision may be made for every possible guest. To add to the interest of the occasion, several short addresses will be delivered by older members of the association, who are interested in the life of Ulster Academy and also in the life of our community. At the close of the banquet, excellent music has been engaged to play for dancing, which may be enjoyed by all who desire and as long as they wish.

K. A. Alumni Big Affair.

All over the city, county and state interest is growing in the final alumni reunion of historic Kingston Academy to be held next Wednesday evening, June 23, and in fact the interest and enthusiasm is running over into other nearby states, as is shown by the acceptances of invitations received. As it has been shown that the alumni wish to make this a memorable occasion, those of the committee in charge have been able to perfect their plans on a basis worthy of such an occasion. While there will be dancing on the ground floor of the new part of the building "Old Kingston Academy Building," every room in the older structure will be opened that the former graduates may roam at will and reminisce at pleasure. One room will be set aside as a smoking room. Of course the banquet and addresses will be the important event of the evening. In order that ample provision may be made for those who wish to attend the banquet, every such person should secure an invitation for the same, for themselves and their husband or wife, at the earliest possible date. Invitations may be secured of Robin Stelle, at the E. T. Stelle and Son shoe store, corner of Wall and John streets, this city.

The following are the committees' officers in full for the reception and banquet: Honorary president, Judge A. T. Clearwater; acting president, Miss Eloise Myer; vice president, Edgar N. Palen; secretary, Robin Stelle; recording secretary, Robert J. Howard; treasurer, John Eckert.

Struck by an Automobile.

Vincent, a young son of Patrick F. McDermott of Hasbrouck avenue, was struck by the auto delivery truck of Samuel Messinger in front of his home this morning about 10 o'clock. It was claimed that the boy darted across the street in front of the machine and Driver Crum was unable to stop the car in time to avoid an accident. The lad was picked up and taken to the Benedictine Sanitarium, where it was found that he sustained a severe scalp wound after examination by Dr. Fred Snyder. The extent of other injuries is not known at this time, but he is not believed to be seriously injured.

If This is Your Birthday?

JUNE 17

Women born on this date are affectionate and demonstrative and demand much attention. They are fond of society, display excellent taste in dress and are magnetic and attractive. However, they are inclined to worry, they fret over the trifles of housekeeping, worry over money affairs and may show jealousy and suspicion without cause. There is a tendency to be over-generous. Their love of praise makes them easily influenced, and as they are not keen readers of characters they may have many unpleasant experiences in their dealings with the opposite sex. These women are excellent housekeepers, but are extravagant. They have a real genius for artistic design and will succeed as milliners or dressmakers.

The governing planet, Gemini, does not give a contented mind, but rather a restless, uneasy nature. Mercury, the governing planet, imparts a keen mentality and love of nature.

"HARD LUCK" BABY NOW AN HEIRESS.
(Marjorie Adams.)

New York, June 17.—In the spacious apartment of Mrs. Frank M. Loper, seven months old Marjorie Adams, daughter of Capt. Percy E. Adams, of the Thirty Eighth Royal Engineers, crowed in delight.

Little Marjorie is the "hard luck" baby, who came to New York from South America in March aboard the United Fruit Steamship Tenadores, foster child of the boat's two hundred passengers and crew, among whom was Mrs. George R. Goethals, daughter-inlaw of Col. Goethals.

The child was born in Cerro de Pasco, Peru, the highest city in the world. Nine days later her mother died and Captain Adams started for England to join his regiment. With him were Marjorie, her brother, Cyril, three, and her sister, Sylvia, sixteen months, in charge of an Indian nurse who died on the voyage.

"She is Miss Marjorie Adams Loper, now," said Mrs. Loper, "Poor Captain Adams was a clerk for Mr. Loper in Peru. When he went to the front we were more than pleased to take little Majorie."

Mr. Loper is a member of Adolph Lowison and Sons. He applied for papers of adoption shortly before Captain Adams arrived in New York.

The captain's other children have sent abroad to live with his sister-in-law. The Lopers are wealthy and Majorie will inherit a large fortune some day.

House's opinion, the time is not yet ripe for any move toward peace among the warring nations. He has spent several months in the war zone as the personal representative of the president and returned to this country aboard the American liner St. Paul on Sunday.

PREMIER AND HIS KING WHOM HE DEFEATED IN ELECTION.
(Premier Venizelos and King Constantine of Greece.)

In the recent election in Greece, Ex-Premier Venizelos, who had left the cabinet because of a break with the king over war matters was heartily supported by the people and his entire party elected. King Constantine has shown some sympathy for the German cause while the Premier was on the side of the Allies. It is probable that in case Greece now enters the war it will be on the side of the Triple Entente.

Hypnotism.

Hypnotism has attracted less attention in England than in most other countries, though the name of hypnotism was first applied to the science by an Englishman, James Braid, a surgeon of Manchester. This was in 1841. But sixty years before that Mesmer had met with great success in Paris, a commission of investigation, including such eminent people as Benjamin Franklin, having to admit many of his facts, while denying his explanation of them. Charlatans brought mesmerism into disrepute for a time, but the Paris Academy of Medicine reported favorably on it in 1831, and at last, in 1892, the British Medical association gave it its approval.—London Opinion

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 17.—The two big leagues—the American Association and the International League—aren't going to the wall and they aren't going to quit business July 4th or at any other time, according to letters that have come to the writer from the presidents of both associations.

Because of so many "reports" emanating from different sources about the financial condition of both leagues the writer put the "reports" up to the presidents of these organizations and asked them for straight forward discussion of those "reports."

Here is the letter that came from Tom Chivington, president of the American Association:

"The American Association made money last year. While some of the clubs lost others made enough to more than offset the losses. Now, with expenses reduced to meet conditions, the association is in better shape than it was a year ago. Contrary to the general opinion we have had fewer postponed games this year than last year at this time because of the excellent weather the last half of April.

"The American Association is one of the strongest baseball leagues in the country and is well equipped to meet any difficulties that may arise. The club owners are business men with considerable resources behind them, but it is unlikely that they will be called upon to fall back upon their resources because every city in the association will support its team even under conditions as unfavorable as those that confront baseball at this time.

"No matter what may happen the American Association will continue to furnish its patrons with the best baseball played outside the American and National Leagues. If it becomes necessary for the club owners to face losses they are prepared to do so, but there is no prospect that this will be necessary."

Here is a letter from Ed. G. Barrows, president of the International League:

"Naturally I wish to deny any and all stories that the International League is going to close on July 4th, or in fact on any other date before September 18th. (Closing date of season.)

"Neither is there any truth in the stories now being printed that the Newark Club will be transferred to Harrisburg. Just now we have no thought of transferring the club at all.

"I am not yet convinced that we are beaten in Newark. The weather conditions have been so bad since the season opened that we haven't really had a chance to judge whether the club is going to draw or not.

"The territory is too valuable to give up without a struggle, and you may be sure that we are going to make a desperate effort to hold on to it.

"As to the other clubs in the league, it is ridiculous to even hint at the possibility of their quitting, even though business should get worse or better. They are all backed by men of means who are not going to 'lay down' and forfeit property rights that represent investments of thousands of dollars.

"We did not figure on doing any great amount of business this year, and to offset this adopted strict player limit rules; operating expenses were also reduced in many other ways. The expense of running a club in the International League now is from one-third to one-half less than last year.

"You can make a bet on our finishing the season. A readjustment of some sort is bound to come before next season, but just what it will be, I am not prepared to say. I do know, however, that no proposition can or will be considered by organized ball that does not fully restore and protect the territorial rights of the International League.

"To my mind, baseball has, for various reasons, been set back fully ten years, but that it will recover its lost prestige within a year or two I haven't the slightest doubt.

"Much good may result from the present 'sickness' of the great national game. Both player and magnate were 'running wild' to a certain extent, and both are no doubt beginning to realize now that they were not the whole works."

Insulted.

"I understand your husband lost his suit on a technicality, Mrs. Nurich." "Pardon me, sir; I'll have you understand that my husband pays cash for his clothes."—Buffalo Express.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 17.—Harry Mabie was given a complete birthday surprise at his home on Green street Tuesday evening by several of his relatives assembling at his home before he arrived from work. The following composed the party: Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Van Aken, Mr. and Mrs. William Mabie, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Mabie and Mrs. Kate Rikley. A bountiful supper was faultlessly served by the hostess, Mrs. Harry Mabie, who so carefully planned the joyous occasion. Omens of Bricklayers.

Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work.

A bricklayer often bricks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck.

To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer.

Churches are the luckiest buildings to work on. Theaters are the unluckiest.

PRINCE ALBERT

Copyright 1915 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Here is another just-elected member of the Prince Albert" old-time jimmypipers club." This is John O'Reilley, of East Providence, R. I., who has just passed the century mark. Mr. O'Reilley is one of those grand old men who has come to this ripe age with the joys of his friendly jimmy pipe fresh in his mind each morning. He has always been a liberal smoker.

Prince Albert is sold everywhere because the demand for it is universal. So wherever you happen to run short just drop in the handiest shop that sells tobacco and buy the toppy red bag for a jitney piece, 5c; tidy red tin, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors; and that classy crystal-glass pound humidor with sponge-moistener top.

You be a sport and take a chance on this say-so, because you've no idea of the bully goodness, of the joy'us satisfaction, of the contentment and restfulness and that sort of thing, that hits every man who gets chummy with P. A.

Hammer this home for what ails your smokeappetite, because you've no time to lose getting introduced to this real and true man-tobacco that's ace-high and a yard wide no matter how you swing on it, jimmy pipe or makin's cigarette!
